Project Came in $100,000 Under Budget

Coram, NY – Brookhaven Town Highway Superintendent Daniel P. Losquadro announced the completion of the largest project undertaken by the Highway Department since he took office in March 2013. The resurfacing of Peconic Avenue was part of a $4-million road reconstruction that included new concrete curbing and aprons, the installation of two new recharge basins on two acres of land, new sidewalks, a crosswalk and paving along this heavy industrial strip.

“Working with my engineering department, I re-constructed Peconic Avenue to state specifications to accommodate the consistent heavy truck traffic the road is exposed to on a daily basis,” said

Superintendent Losquadro. “I was extremely proud to complete this project $100,000 under budget, saving taxpayers’ money while significantly improving this roadway for area businesses and motorists.”

Councilman Neil Foley said, “Keeping our roads maintained and safe is a priority for the Town, and I thank Superintendent Losquadro and the Highway Department for completing this project and for all they do to improve roads in my district and throughout Brookhaven.”
